Creating an empathy map for the global air transportation network can help us understand the thoughts, feelings, and needs of various stakeholders involved in the industry. This can include passengers, airline staff, airport personnel, aviation authorities, and more.

